Swearing, violence, withdrawing, tantrums and lying are but a few behaviours traumatised children / young people use to tell their 'story' and stay in control. Developing communication skills that enable a worker or carers to translate the meaning of the behaviour and make it transparent, promotes healing. Further it assists the child or adolescent to create a 'language' that enables those around them to more easily understand what it is they need.

Seminar Objectives:

- To understand the impact trauma and abuse has on the communication style of the child / young person
- To discover that communication is more than talking
- To understand why it is that what you say is not always what they do
- To gain knowledge about how language is processed in the brain of an abused child / young person
- To learn to translate what is said by deciphering children and young people's language and behaviour
- To develop the ability to 'plant seeds' in order to effect behaviour change

Suitable Audience:

- Carers & workers from foster, permanent, residential, adoptive & kinship care
- Family service workers
- Child protection workers
- Case managers
- Youth Justice
- Teachers / teacher's aide
- Student welfare / wellbeing professionals

Gregory Nicolau is the company Director and Consultant Psychologist of Australian Childhood Trauma Group. He has a 30 year career working with the most marginalised and vulnerable children, young people and families in our community and the agencies, organisations and education facilities who support them.
