You've got their attention, in the chair / corridor / car but what do you say next? This seminar will explore how to respond to children, young people and adults in a way that expands on the healing relationship that you have begun with them. Strong counselling skills also require you to have an excellent awareness of your own communication effectiveness. This seminar will ensure that you know what to say, when to say it, how to say it... and when to say nothing at all.

Seminar Objectives:

- To explore context-specific counselling techniques
- To identify strategies for engaging children, young people and adults in counselling conversations
- To understand the ethical considerations of counselling practice
- To explore a range of communication techniques relevant in counselling engagements
- To understand the importance of your own communication methods
- To understand the basis of a healing conversation
- To identify important moments and how to deal with them
- To explore useful responses in difficult conversations

Suitable Audience:

- Carers & workers from foster, permanent, residential, adoptive & kinship care
- Family service workers
- Child protection workers
- Case managers
- Youth Justice
- Teachers / teacher's aide
- Student welfare / wellbeing professionals

Nick Grainger has a 10 year background of working with children, young people and families within the out of home care sector. Nick has considerable experience working with vulnerable and high-risk young people in residential and educational settings and is recognised for his calm and compassionate approach. Nick has a particular interest in the educating and skilling of people and has continued to work in the education sector as a facilitator and directly with schools regarding the effects of trauma. Nick also has extensive management experience in the not-for-profit sector, overseeing re-structuring of residential care, adolescent community placement and lead tenant programs.
