Join Bryan as he unravels the minefield that is Personality Disorders - who? what? why? when? where? How does self-harming behaviour fit in? And should young people who have suffered abuse have the diagnosis?

Seminar Objectives:

- To understand the range of personality disorders and their differences
- To identify possible causes and treatments
- To increase your skills at identifying self-harming behaviours
- To understand how common self-harming behaviour really is
- To develop management plans to minimise the risk of self-harming behaviour becoming habitual
- To keep your head while all around you are losing theirs, and blaming it on you!

Suitable Audience:

- Carers & workers from foster, permanent, residential, adoptive & kinship care
- Child protection workers
- Family service workers
- Mental health professionals
- Youth Justice
- Teachers / teacher's aide
- Student welfare / wellbeing professionals

Bryan Jeffrey is a psychiatric nurse with over 15 years clinical experience working with young people in care, both in Scotland and Melbourne. As the Director of MOAT: Mental Health, Bryan develops mental health training sessions, and delivers them throughout Australia, demystifying mental illness for a range of audiences interested in further developing their understanding of this growing area. Mental health doesn't have to be a confusing concept, however, some clinicians prefer to keep it that way. Bryan wants to help break down those barriers between that small group of elitist clinicians, and the people who actually provide the ongoing support to their clients.
